Our Story
Our Mission

A Promise Kept

Angels Unaware, Inc. was started by a group of concerned parents with developmentally disabled children in 1973. The name, “Angels Unaware”, was inspired by Roy Rogers’ and Dale Evan’s work with Down Syndrome children and Dale Evan’s book titled “Angels Unaware”. It was one of the first successful group homes in the Tampa Bay area. It was these parents’ promise to help both ambulatory and non-ambulatory residents reach their full potential in an independent environment. Through their promise our group homes and supported living services give our residents the opportunity to live together in a family setting and become viable members of our community.

Training with Structured Care

Our highly trained staff brings very specialized services to our residents. Life skills are taught within the home environment. Programs, using a behavioral management approach, are developed to meet the individualized needs of each resident. We also consult with and involve our residents with other professionals to meet the wide variety of physiological, psychological, educational and spiritual needs of our residents.

Qualified and Caring Staff

The people who are employees of Angels Unaware Inc. are valued and considered one of its greatest resources. In developing this valuable resource to its fullest potential, staff members are provided with opportunities for continuing education and development of their skills. This helps us to provide a quality caring staff for the consumers that we serve. It is our desire that staff enjoy their work and are an integral part of our service delivery. Our senior management staff has an average 20 years of service to the organization.

Philosophy of Angels Unaware

“Our residents do not live in a facility, we work in their homes.”
