This beautiful, custom made brass ornament is 4" in diameter and comes in a black gift box with a clear lid and is ready to be hung on your Christmas tree. Angels Unaware's ornaments have a wide circulation across the world, thanks to our supporters. They have been used as gifts, attached to presents in place of a bow and have been sent to our troops in every major conflict since 1990. Each ornament is dated and we also have many of the previous year's ornaments still available for purchase to complete your collection.

Each year we use the profits from the ornament sale to supplement our transportation costs. With the rising cost of gas and insurance, this fundraiser is an important one for Angels Unaware, Inc. Please order as many ornaments as you can to help us supplement these costs. You can order from our web site or fill out the order form located on the back of this newsletter. We believe your friends, neighbors, and co-workers would be happy to receive these Christmas ornaments as gifts or would gladly purchase them from you to help our cause. Thank you for your support.

From the Home Front

Are You Ready for Some Football?

It's that time of year again. The baseball games mean something and football and hockey have just started and it's still early enough so you still have hope for your team. Through most of the year the residents and staff search their brains for ideas for outings. No problems at this time of year. We can't beg or plead enough to get tickets to events the residents are clamoring for. You think you're a fan? How do you compare to these guys?

Reve lives in his own apartment. He has gotten his old portable television out and has arranged his furniture to accommodate his plans. Every year at this time you can catch Reve with a different game on each of his two televisions, his radio headset plugged in tuned in to another game and the Sports section of the paper spread out for easy reference. Ask him about what's going on in any of the games and he can tell you. He will trade it all in to be at a game if he can manage it. His favorites are USF Football and Lightning Games. But, he wouldn't turn down Rays or Bucs tickets either.

Jeff is a "one sport at a time" kind of guy. He is usually a happy, energetic, friendly guy, except for Monday and Tuesday mornings during football season. It doesn't matter if the game was determined at the half, he will watch it to its end. The morning after he's like half the men in America, sleep walking through the day and only coming alive again with the Magic words, "Are you ready for some football?". If you want to talk football with him you better know your stuff. Jeff knows all his favorite players by their jersey numbers.

Jackie loves to attend the Hockey games. Does he love hockey? I don't know about that. Watching on television doesn't interest him that much. But if he has half a chance to go to a game you better get out of his way. For Jackie, the game doesn't really start until the pizza is ready and on the tray of his wheelchair. His preferred drink is Café con Leche and he knows the vendor where they make it the best. He really likes the seating area for the mobility impaired guests. It just so happens that the Lightning Girls perform their dance routines right behind the wheel chair area. (His pizza almost slid off his tray, he turned his chair around so fast). I've never seen a guy cheer for a "TV Time Out" so much.

So many of the local sports franchises have been good to our guys. The Lightning has given us some tickets, or at the very least, we've never paid full price for a ticket. The Tampa Yankees always sends some tickets our way. The Tampa Bay Buccaneers have even invited some of the guys to join them on the practice field during preseason.

Our guys go through the same metamorphosis that occurs with most guys at this time of year. Our wardrobes suddenly change colors to reflect our team and most of our shirts now have numbers and somebody else's name on the back. Greetings go from handshakes to high fives or chest-thumps. Even our voices change to deeper or hoarse whispers.

Letter From the President—Gary Pailthorp

We just finished up with the restaurant raffle, Tropical Storm Fay caused us to cancel the August Board Meeting where we intended to conduct the drawing. That drawing was rescheduled to September 9th and by the time you read this it will have been held and the winners announced. I am sorry we delayed the drawing for what must now seem like a minor issue, but let me help you understand.

In Hillsborough County there are no shelters that are set-up for or designated for our residents. Therefore, our staff is forced to position themselves, emergency generators, food and other necessities so that, should the worst happen, our residents will be taken care of. Perhaps, if you attended our last picnic at Lowry Park, you saw the portable kitchen the staff has put together on a trailer to allow us to feed all of the residents from a single facility. The time and effort involved to insure everything is ready is significant and the importance of having everything checked and ready to go is their highest priority.

As time goes on we hope to have a facility that is hardened to survive a hurricane so that we can be more confident of our ability to fulfill our obligations to our residents in the event of a hurricane. So please continue to support our fund raising activities and speak to our Government about planning for all of our citizens. Maybe someday a tropical storm or hurricane will only be a minor inconvenience to the Angel's staff and not a cause for major upheaval.
